

Thank You

Charles Pinckney Jones and his wife Mattie had a total of eleven children, nine of which survived into adulthood. Shortly after Mattie's death in 1929, her son-in-law also passed away. As a young widow, Mabel returned to the family home in Monterey to raise her two daughters, Mary Hille and Elizabeth.

Neither Mary Hille nor Elizabeth married, however, they retained the family home for the remainder of their lives. It is through their generosity that the house is currently owned by the Charles Pinckney Jones Charitable Trust, which is funding the restoration.

The Charles Pinckney Jones House Museum

Charles Pinckney Jones House

The house was built in 1850 as a log and frame structure, with four rooms and a central staircase. The house was purchased in 1873 by Charles Pinckney Jones and his wife, Mattie. In 1884, a large two-story addition, including dining room, kitchen, 2nd floor parlor, and two bedrooms was added to the rear of the house. In 1910, a bay addition on the east side added two more bedrooms.

Following his service in the Confederate Army, Charles Pinckney Jones attended law school at the University of Virginia. During his career, he practiced law in Monterey; was elected to both the House of Delegates and the Virginia State Senate; served as the rector of UVA from 1898-1906; and was president of the Citizen Bank of Highland from 1908 until his death in 1914.
